Divide West Cuba's Aim

Sister States
Urge
Moderation

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (UPI)—Colombia Tuesday accused Cuba of trying to divide the western hemisphere and of seeking to turn Latin America against the U.S.

Latin American foreign minister worked behind the scenes here, meanwhile, to persuade Cuba to try to moderate her foreign policy.

MEETING TODAY

The Organization of American States' meeting was called to consider the threat of Communist infiltration in the western hemisphere. U.S. State Secretary Herter is to speak today.

Colombia's foreign minister, Julio Turbay, calling on Cuba to submit to the "discipline" of the inter-American system, said today's conflict is between America and the Soviet Union—"between democracy and Communism."

ROCKET THREATS

He said current threats to hemispheric solidarity stemmed principally from Nikita Khrushchev's threats to use rockets against the U.S. if it attacks Cuba and Cuba's acceptance of the offer.

Turbay said both offer and acceptance constituted an "unequivocal violation of the juridical and political fundamentals of the American system" and proposed settling Cuban-U.S. differences by a five-national committee.

MORE MODERATE

Peru's Raul Porras and Mexico's Manuel Tello were more moderate. Porras reaffirmed the principle of hemispheric fraternity and Tello called on Cuba to achieve its goals without outside help.

Rule Waived for Boy, 15

Majors Chase Hardship Star

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A 15-year-old St. Louis Negro boy has been granted permission by baseball commissioner Ford Frick to sign a pro contract "as a hardship case" and major league scouts are lining up to make their offers.

He is Mike Jones, a six-foot 170-pound seventh-grader and son of a laborer with 10 children. His right-handed pitching and slugging has attracted a lot of attention from scouts in the area. The boy's sponsor and team manager is Irvin Lorts of St. Louis. Lorts said he was told in a letter from Frick the rule against signing boys before they graduate from high school would be waived in Jones' case Aug. 31.

"He has pitched more than 30 no-hits games," Lorts said.

At Brentwood Park he hit a ball that cleared a creek behind a fence which is 47 feet from the plate. At Maplewood he hit two that cleared a road behind the fence.

Three weekends ago he hit seven home runs in three games.

Heard First

Studies indicate that alterations in the sound pattern may be noticed before physical changes are observable by X-ray, he added.

The sounds can be picked up by a sensitive microphone attached to the knee—and then recorded on magnetic tape for later analysis.

About Same

Normal knee joints, he said, produce sounds which are relatively uniform in intensity, frequency and wave pattern.

In rheumatoid knee joints, the most frequently heard sound was a low thud, while in degenerative arthritis (osteoarthritis) the characteristic sound was a series of high-frequency bursts at irregular intervals.

EDINBURGH, Scotland (Reuters)—Scottish nationalists Tuesday night remained seated and hissed during the playing of God Save the Queen following a new Edinburgh festival play about Scottish patriot William Wallace. But they later joined in the singing of the Scottish anthem, Scots Wha Hae.

A membrane in Rhoda Lunt's heart was blocking oxygen from her lungs. This happens about once in every 70,000 births and is usually fatal.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—A baby girl here survived a heart operation 48 hours after birth, doctors said Tuesday. The demonstration was made to mark the anniversary of the execution of Wallace, in London on Aug. 23, 1307.

Baby Wins First Round

FORT WILLIAM, Ont. (UPI)—A sailor was fined $40 yesterday for giving a cat a drink of milk from his glass in a local restaurant.

Raymond Jackson, a 27-year-old Halifax-based seaman, walked into the restaurant yesterday with the cat draped over his shoulder. He ordered a glass of milk then held it up for the cat to drink. The proprietor took exception, and Jackson was charged with causing a disturbance.

'Hic, Hic, Hurrah' as Queen Honors Barmaid

LONDON (CP)—For the first time in history the Queen has awarded a British Empire medal in honor of service to the tipping public.

Agnes Mawhinney, a spry 65, received her medal Tuesday beside the bar of the pub for which she has pulled pints for 14 years. She now is manager of the Crown, a pub at Wetheral in the north of England.

Agnes could have gone to Buckingham Palace to receive her award, but she chose to stay at home. The Queen couldn't be there, but she sent Sir Fergus Graham, Lord Lieutenant of Cumberland, all decked out in his dress blue uniform. He read the citation: "Miss Mawhinney has given a high standard of public service to the community."

Then he pinned the medal on the delighted lady.

"Hic, Hic, Hurrah" shouted the delighted townsfolk who gathered around the bar for the celebration. They had come early to get a head start. Their cheers rang on into the night. Agnes was also handed a personal message from the Queen.

It was clearly her big day. And it came just in time. Agnes is retiring at the end of the month.

Six Relatives Die in Plunge

FERNIE, B.C. (CP)—Six persons were found dead Tuesday in the wreckage of a car that plunged 60 feet into the Elk River, 30 miles south of this B.C. Kootenay town.

All the dead were related.

Police said the car hurtled straight over an unfinished project instead of taking a sharp right-hand turn in the highway.

VICTIMS NAMED

Dead are Charles Hutchinson, 22, of Vancouver; his wife Faye, 22; George Andrew, 18; Martha Hutchinson, 17; Jimmy Hutchinson, 12, and Fernie Hutchinson, 55, all of Homers, near here.

Jimmy and Martha were brother and sister and cousins of the Hutchinsons. Andrew was also a cousin of the Hutchinson family. Fernie and Charles Hutchinson were brothers.

Another motorist died Monday afternoon on the same highway.

Omar F. Lundberg, about 55, of Grasmer, B.C., was found dead in his car, which appeared to have plunged off the road into a ditch.

LONDON (Reuters)—Major General Henry Alexander, British commander of Ghana's defense force, said Tuesday he has "better things to do" than to read United Nations envoy Ralph Bunche's criticism of his views.

Alexander, who arrived by air from New York, repeated his conviction that the UN force in the Congo is in an "impossible position" because it has not received clear, concise orders.

Pope to Greet 7,000 Athletes

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Pope John XXIII today receives about 7,000 Olympic athletes from both sides of the Iron Curtain in an unprecedented open-air audience in St. Peter's Square on the eve of the 1960 games.

No other pontiff in the 2,000-year history of the Roman Catholic Church has ever addressed Olympic athletes en masse.

Russia's Olympic team sent word to Vatican officials that it would be present at the audience. Communist Yugoslavia, Romania and Bulgaria intimated that they would boycott the papal appearance.

Vatican officials said at least 70 of the 85 nations competing in the Rome Olympic have announced they were attending the audience.

Pope John, sitting on a gilded throne on top of the flight of steps leading up to St. Peter's basilica, was to address the athletes in Latin. Vatican interpreters will then summarize the speech in 15 languages including Russian, Polish, Hungarian, English and French.

Italian Defense Minister Giulio Andreotti, in his capacity as president of the organizing committee for the Rome Olympic, will deliver a Latin-language address of greetings to the Pontiff. Pope John will read his 10-minute Latin speech to the athletes.

Katanga Fighting

UN Troops Join Rebel Tribesmen

ELISABETHVILLE, Katanga (UPI)—Mutinous UN troops from West Africa's recently dissolved Mali Federation were reported today to have joined tribesmen fighting the government of this "independent" Congo province.

A Katanga government announcement said at least two persons—an African territorial agent and a policeman—had been killed in riots touched off by the mutiny of a Mali detachment at Albertville, 420 miles northeast of here.

UN authorities sent an observer to Albertville to investigate the Katanga claim.

Mayor Not Worried

Traffic Falls Off At Nanaimo Ferry

Volume of traffic using Nanaimo ferries is reported off 18 to 20 per cent from normal, and while most of the blame is being laid at the doorstep of the new B.C. ferry service from Swartz Bay, Mayor Pete Maffeo says "I am not at all concerned."

He said that if the provincial ferry service is making inroads on Nanaimo's trade the condition is only temporary because more island ferries mean more tourists.

"I don't care how many ferries are put on—they all help to bring more people," said the Nanaimo mayor.

He said he personally inspected ferry docks in Nanaimo at the weekend and found "that the lineups were so long they were pitiful."

A great many Island visitors are still plagued by the fear they may not be able to get back to the mainland when they want to, he added.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

(Reprinted from "All Aboard" of June 29, 1958)

BILL is a writer who tries out his stories on anybody he can get in a corner. It's the end of a party when Bill comes in the room with the fat briefcase which he seems to carry everywhere.

People run for the exits. Sometimes a few people stay where they are—near-sighted folk who don't identify Bill until he is upon them, or strangers in town. Bill opens his briefcase, extracts a sheaf of manuscripts, and hands one to each person.

"Read that," he commands.

And for the next 10 or 15 minutes there is silence in the room as Bill's victims drag their way through 3,000 words apiece of muddy prose.

He must be a prolific writer. Even if—by a stroke of luck—he manages to impound 15 or 20 people in a room, he seems to have enough manuscripts for everybody.

Then he hovers around each of them in turn, saying nothing but trying to read their thoughts from scowls, coughs and frowns.

As he scans all the faces, he looks more and more crestfallen, because he fancies that he is picking up signals of scorn and condemnation. But he doesn't abandon hope. He leans toward people, as though trying to influence their judgment with body English.

At last the critics reach the end of his works, and begin delivering their verdicts. "Hmmm," says one man as he hands back the manuscript, trying to convey the idea of depth and mystery in one syllable without telling any lies. "Yeah, unique," says another.

But there is one man who wants to make sure he is never subjected to this ordeal again.

"Do you really want my candid opinion?" he demands.

"Oh yes, that's why I gave it to you," says Bill, who is so touchy about his stories that he goes into a sulk at any sign of hostile criticism. "Don't be afraid of hurting my feelings," he adds.

"All right, then," says the brutal reader. "I think it's gosh awful."

And so it is. But this man won't ever be asked to read a story again. Only polite and tactful people are burdened with the task.

'Decent Chance' to Get Out

Belgians Take Time In Quitting Katanga

KAMINA, The Congo (AP) — The Belgian commander of the Kamina army base in Katanga province said Tuesday he has no intention of quitting the base in a hurry.

"We are doing our best to withdraw Belgians and soldiers from Katanga in compliance with the United Nations' orders. But we are not abandoning the base in a week or anything like that," said Col. Remy Van Lierde. "We want a decent chance to get out. We are going to fight for a chance to leave here in an orderly manner. It is not going to be a case of grabbing a couple of suitcases and scrambling away."

DAKAR, Senegal (UPI) — Leopold Senghor refused to confirm or deny reports that Mali Federation troops under United Nations command in the Congo had mutinied.

"The troops in the Congo are neither Malian, Senegalese nor Sudanese," he said. "They are just United Nations troops, and must obey the orders of the United Nations."

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold announced Tuesday that he has no intention of quitting the base in a hurry.

"We are doing our best to withdraw Belgians and soldiers from Katanga in compliance with the United Nations' orders. But we are not abandoning the base in a week or anything like that," said Col. Remy Van Lierde. "We want a decent chance to get out. We are going to fight for a chance to leave here in an orderly manner. It is not going to be a case of grabbing a couple of suitcases and scrambling away."

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP) — The Congo government cut its imports by nearly half Tuesday as this troubled nation fought against economic stagnation as well as political chaos.

The government banned the importation of heavy machinery, textiles and luxury foods to save dwindling foreign reserves.

GETS REPRIEVE.

MONROVIA (CP) — Golders Green Hippodrome, threatened with demolition because of plans for an office block on its site, has been given a reprieve.

The 6,000,000-gallon reservoir being built on the eastern slope of Mount Tolmie by the Greater Victoria water board could in future be the foundation for a perfectly flat sports field, an official suggested yesterday.

The reservoir, scheduled to be ready for use by the end of October, will have a concrete cover over its entire area of nearly two acres.

GRANITE BASE.

On top of this "roof" the water board will lay a gravel base this winter, and once drainage has been checked, will add a layer of earth. The gravel and earth will act as insulation.

The water board has no funds for development of the field thus created, the official said, but he suggested it would lend itself to bowling greens or tennis courts.

But Canada Hits July Low

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment in Canada jumped 11,000 between mid-June and mid-July—an abnormal increase for a summer month. But the B.C. picture seemed brighter.

A B.C. government official stated that, although complete figures are not yet available, it would appear the percentage of unemployed in B.C. is

It represents 4.7 per cent of the mid-July labor force of 6,592,000, slightly higher than 4.6-per-cent unemployment in mid-June.

But it is up sharply over the 3.5-per-cent unemployment of mid-July, 1959, based on a labor force of 6,434,000.

Only once before in post-war years—in 1957—did unemployment jump in July.

Reaction was prompt from the Canadian Labor Congress, which said the figures are "evidence of a shocking situation which calls for immediate and urgent government action."

REASON WHY

The bureau of statistics said the increase resulted from layoffs and temporary shutdowns in Ontario and Quebec manufacturing centres.

Simultaneously, the administration announced that it had embargoed other countries from using U.S. foreign aid funds to buy sugar from the Trujillo government, which has been condemned "for ag-

Are You
A Bore?

A noted publisher in Chicago reports there is a simple technique of everyday conversation which can pay you real dividends in both social and business advancement and works like magic to give you added poise, self confidence and greater popularity.

According to this publisher, many people do not realize how much they could influence others simply by what they say and how they say it. Whether in business, at social functions, or even in casual conversations with new acquaintances, there are ways in which you can make a good impression every time you talk.

To acquaint the readers of this paper with the easy-to-follow rules for developing skill in everyday conversation, the publishers have printed full details of their interesting self-training method in a 24-page booklet, "Adventures in Conversation," which will be mailed free to anyone who requests it. No obligation. Simply send your request to: Conversation Studies, 835 Diversey Parkway, Dept. 577C, Chicago 14, Ill. A postcard will do.

Scholar in Politics

By B. T. RICHARDSON
(Ninth of a Series)

A cabinet minister who has outgrown the label of "boy prodigy of Parliament" has built himself a solid reputation as one of the ablest members of the Diefenbaker government. The minister of justice, has youthful driving force and a glittering capacity in debate. It is sometimes recalled that when Mr. Fulton arrived in the House of Commons in 1945—age 29 and fresh from a fine war record—the late Prime Minister Mackenzie King remarked in him was the potential of a future prime minister; the Fulton career and family background sustain the prediction.

* * *

Today at 44 years of age, Davie Fulton has gone farther and faster than any leading figure in Canadian politics.

If anyone was fated for politics, it was Davie Fulton. His father was a B.C. cabinet minister, his grandfather was premier of B.C. as was his grand-uncle.

* * *

He was also fated to belong to the war generation. Enlisting in the Canadian Army in 1940, he finished as a major in the Seaforth Highlanders.

for the Conservative leadership in 1956 down to the last count. He ran third, after the present prime minister and Donald Fleming.

* * *

But fate is nothing without personal ability. Davie Fulton won a Rhodes Scholarship in B.C. in 1936 and he entered law practice after a brilliant academic career. He electrified the House by speaking in French on the first occasion he rose to address it.

Davie Fulton is a scholarly personality, an intellectual in politics. He falls into a somewhat rare category. On entering parliament, he became a protege of John Diefenbaker. The political intimacy was strained when Fulton insisted on going through with his bid for the Conservative leadership in 1956 down to the last count.

He ran third, after the present prime minister and Donald Fleming.

* * *

In the House, Mr. Fulton displays little of the personal magnetism that attracts a large following. His power of expression is little tinged with popular appeal. But he has handled adroitly many sticky problems, such as the controversy with Newfoundland. He has, in marked measure, the power of decision and of action.

Mr. Hammarskjold's Victory

UNITED NATIONS SECRETARY-General Dag Hammarskjold stands today a living monument of victory of understanding and calm determination over tyranny and petty obstructionism. A lesser man might have acted differently in the face of the worsening Congo situation. The temptation to meet fire with fire was great even though it would have resulted in more bloodshed in that trouble-stricken land.

The fact that Mr. Hammarskjold's strategy of patience was rewarded by receiving the support of the Security Council will be a source of great satisfaction to most member countries of the United Nations.

From his inviolable position, Mr. Hammarskjold stopped the headstrong Congolese premier in his tracks by bluntly denying unfounded charges regarding the policy and behavior of UN troops. In the face of this immutable man of principle, Mr. Lumumba quickly collapsed and hastily withdrew his charges.

The Congolese leader now stands before the world as having wholly accepted Mr. Hammarskjold's authority in handling the Congo crisis. If, once again, he reverses his stand, Mr. Lumumba will lose what little respect and confidence the rest of the world still holds in him.

But Mr. Lumumba was small fry. Mr. Hammarskjold also took on the Soviet Union. Tearing Russian criticism of Canadian troops in the UN force to shreds he told the Security Council that the Canadians were needed because they were the only available signalmen who could speak both French and English. Sensing the calibre of the men they were dealing with, the Russians withdrew their only other resolution.

Today the world can breathe easier and UN troops can move freely about their lawful duties because in the UN secretary-general has been found a man who will take on anything from a vicious African pygmy to a nuclear-weapon wielding Russian giant in the name of peace and common sense.

National Aid for Schools

AMONG motions which the City of Victoria will present at the annual convention of the Union of B.C. Municipalities next month is one calling for a contribution to local school budgets from income tax revenue collected by the federal government.

This is a little more specific than the general run of demands for Dominion assistance with the cost of education. Even if adopted by the convention, however, it is not likely to get far. The distribution of financial responsibilities under the British North America Act does not encourage hope for relief from Ottawa, any more than does the state of the Dominion's own budget.

Apart from all that, the Victoria proposal collides with a difficult jurisdictional problem. The federal government would be extremely unlikely to accept a share of the cost of running the schools without requiring some say in how they were run and what was taught.

Even if some of the municipalities are willing to do so, would the provinces be prepared to surrender any of their authority over the education system granted to them exclusively under the BNA Act? One cannot see the province of British Columbia accepting any financial help from Ottawa if it entailed any loss whatever of authority over the curriculum and the school boards of the province.

One form of aid which possibly could be afforded by the national government without doing violence to feelings lower down the governmental ladder would be a scheme of grants towards the capital cost of schools. Since education is for the good of Canada as a whole, it is not unreasonable to suggest that there should be some sharing of the financial burden by the senior government.

The great difficulty in this country as in the United States—where federal participation in the field of education has been a political issue for years—is to find a formula to meet the differing needs of widely separated regions. Common to all is the need for school buildings. It should not over-tax the ingenuity of the various governments to devise a system whereby the national government would provide assistance in providing places for instruction, leaving it to the provinces to carry on from there.

Nothing to Fear

MR. STANLEY KNOWLES, vice-president of the CLC, says a crash campaign will be conducted if Mr. Diefenbaker calls a federal election before the founding convention next summer of the new CCF-CLC party. What is meant by a "crash" campaign is not easy to guess. The CCF usually puts up a strenuous election fight, aided by the free enterprise press against which it so often fulminates.

It is an irony that seemingly escapes CCF and CLC leaders that the press of Canada, invariably opposed to socialism, has always thrown open its columns to CCF publicity. This it does in pursuit of its objective policies of news presentation. Had it been otherwise the country might scarcely ever have heard of the CCF. One wonders if a CCF-CLC newspaper would be equally altruistic.

The projected union of socialist and labor political interests would of course add greatly to the funds available to the new party. It is union contributions that are expected to give fresh impetus to the expanded aims of the CCF by strengthening the capacities of its propaganda service. That this would be an unmixed blessing is open to doubt.

Interpreting the News

More Trouble in Africa

By ALAN HARVEY, Canadian Press Staff Writer

A CONFLICT of personalities, cultures and temperaments is involved in the dismantling of the infant federation of Mali.

Unless President de Gaulle can do something about it, it looks as though Mali's two territories—Senegal and the French Sudan—will decide to live apart.

The federation, born 18 months ago, was originally intended to embrace also Dahomey and the Upper Volta, but these two were instead lured into an entente led by Felix Houphouet-Boigny, a veteran Socialist and a well-known figure in pre-war French parliaments.

This was political poison to Senegal premier Mamadou Dia, who is Mali's vice-premier and defence minister. Both he and Senghor, respected poet and intellectual, had long battled to break Gueye's grip on Senegalese politics.

Well-wishers will hope that a solution to the impasse can be found. Mali takes its name from one of the great Negro empires of the middle ages, which has been cited as an example of Negro capacity for political organization. The failure of the present experiment would be a dismaying omen.

Senegal, for more than a century if the unions make the CCF affluent they may want to call the shots. Not all trade unionists are socialists, and patently a struggle is in the offing for control of the new party. The interests of unionism and political socialism do not always coincide, as the example of the British Labor Party makes very clear.

A war in 1950 did not carry the same deadly portent for the world as one would in 1960, however; this may exceed Mr. Truman's seeming indifference.

Similarly when in 1945 he gave the order for the atomic bomb to be dropped—"Well, that was that and I need not another thought to the matter." A pity, though. Hindsight suggests it would have been better had the Hiroshima bomb not been dropped.

Mr. Truman says, "I am a simple sort of fellow," which might mean that people in his home town of Independence should greet him at a day with "Good morning, Mr. President." He surely doesn't expect them all to say "Hello, Harry." That would be carrying simplicity too far. Mr. Diefenbaker is a favorite son of Prince Albert but one doubts that his old pals clutch him round the neck as, perhaps, they formerly did. The more formal "Mr. Prime Minister" seems likely.

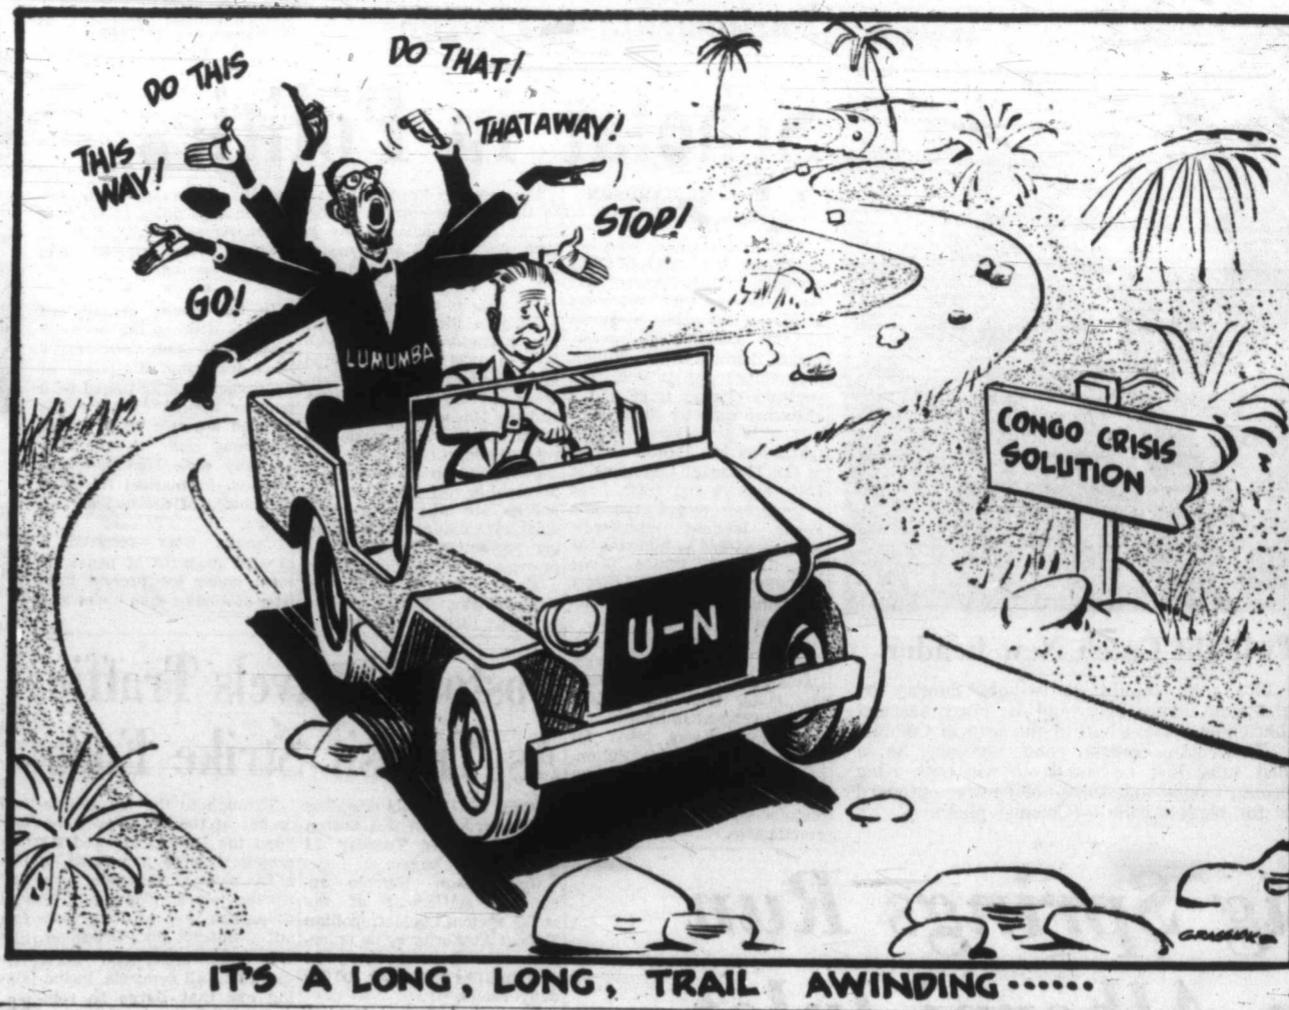

As prime minister Mr. Diefenbaker carries with him the aura of his position. So did Mr. Truman, and the presidential aura is awesome. In some respects the occupant of the White House commands more deference than any other head of state; and it follows him into retirement.

Mr. Truman affects otherwise, but one cannot help feeling this is an affectation. He asks, "Why should they behave in this strange and incomprehensible way? Just because I had been president of the United States for eight years?"

Precisely. He could not thereafter become a common man. Nor can he be regarded as such.

The former president shows that his tongue is in his cheek when he says that being president "doesn't mean a thing," and then goes on: "You don't have to be anything special to become president of the United States. Just look at Eisenhower."

The last four words indicate he is far from the simple fellow he makes himself out to be.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

M. Truman has made up with Senator Kennedy and so, presumably, Democratic prospects will flourish afresh across the line. For the former president is still a formidable figure given to potent voice. He is a man of decision, one way or another.

It was the power of decision, allied to political courage that made him a good president.

When he had to recall General MacArthur from Japan, for instance—a course from which many presidents might have shrunken—he took only 23 seconds to decide. This I learn from some quotes from his memoirs.

Doubtless he had pondered the removal of MacArthur for some time—one can scarcely conclude otherwise—but the moment of decision was abrupt and certain. That was, essentially, because he does not worry, the mark of a big man in office.

* * *

As for example: "When I decided to interfere with all our military might in Korea (the UN merely followed on), I knew that a new world war might start but I was not worried at all—I am just not the worrying type." (Good for him, but one hopes those in a position today to start a global war are more prone to a second thought.)

A war in 1950 did not carry the same deadly portent for the world as one would in 1960, however; this may exceed Mr. Truman's seeming indifference.

Similarly when in 1945 he gave the order for the atomic bomb to be dropped—"Well, that was that and I need not another thought to the matter." A pity, though. Hindsight suggests it would have been better had the Hiroshima bomb not been dropped.

Letter from London

Anarchy Among the Trade Unions

By RICHARD L. THOMAS

ONE of the problems of an affluent society is that it breeds anarchy. Britain has "never had it so good" according to the Conservatives; and the socialists admit that it is reasonably good but have become a little hoarse from prophesying doom—just around the corner. The result is a rather strange malaise—a defiance of union leadership mainly, it would seem, because of the desire for a holiday.

The result of course, is infinitely pleasing to Moscow. It disrupted the flow of trade both in and out of the country and for travellers and holiday makers it provided an atmosphere of unreliability and uncertainty. The fact that 2,000 people were prevented from sailing on the Queen Mary is not just a question of inconvenience at the time. It leads to a long-term belief that British sailings are unreliable. The result is that more passengers turn to foreign lines, and eventually more British seamen are put out of a job.

This anarchy is the direct result of the affluent society in Britain. These men by comparative standards are well off. Most of the ship eating staff and stewards make double their pay from gratuities. Travellers normally are generous; much of their generosity is tax free and the men have built up a nice little bank balance. Theoretically the "fight for a decent standard of living," as the communists put it, is for an extra $3.50 a month—less than a bar steward would make in serving a dozen rounds of drinks.

Nuclear Controls

Two Keys, One Cupboard

By DUART FARQUHARSON

CANADA. Prime Minister Diefenbaker has said, wants the United States to grant it the same joint control of nuclear warheads for missiles in Canada as has been accorded to Britain.

What is the U.S.-British agreement? Is there anything in it that might make its application to Canada dangerous from the American point of view?

Under the terms of the 1958 agreement a nuclear-armed Thor ballistic missile can only be launched from a British base with the joint decision of the two governments.

Fifteen minutes would be required to launch the Thor missile. A British key would initiate the countdown. At a certain stage the American authentication officer would release the nuclear warhead for operational use.

The missile itself is a British responsibility. The key to each one is treated with care, handled formally, and moved from watch to watch according to set procedures. Thus operational control is undisputedly in British hands.

The Americans have complete responsibility for the possession and maintenance of the warheads. Their officers cannot initiate the countdown; but they can hold it up if authority to release the warhead has not been received from the United States.

Defense experts in London do not see why such an arrangement could not work just as well for Bomarc missiles, if they are established in Canada. They think the principle of two keys in two cupboards—Canadians controlling the Bomarc missile, Americans controlling the nuclear warhead—is applicable.

Why then has no agreement been reached during 16 months of Canadian-American discussions? London observers suspect that the problem of joint control centres not on the Bomarc but on single-seater fighter planes carrying nuclear missiles.

A study of the most recent American defence expenditure figures indicates that Washington intends to base the defence of North America on the nuclear Falcon. The interceptor which will carry this air-to-air missile has not yet been chosen. It is likely to be either the F101-B or the Convair E-106, which are single-seater, supersonic fighters.

Should Canada, on urging from Washington, decide to buy the Bomarc missile but one of these interceptors, which would be armed with the nuclear Falcon, joint control would be much more difficult to achieve.

If the plane was piloted by a Canadian, the United States would have no effective control once it took off. This American law would not permit. Once taken, the decision to launch a Thor or Bomarc missile is irrevocable: the nuclear-armed missile cannot be destroyed when it is airborne. The order for a nuclear-armed aircraft to take off is not final: it is the pilot in the air who fires the missile.

It would be possible to prevent the armed interceptor taking off without a joint order from Washington and Ottawa. But to do so would in all likelihood destroy much of the military advantage of the defence system.

The dilemma is this. Military planners want to be able to put the fighters in the skies when there is a possibility, not yet a certainty, that attack is coming. But once in the skies Canadians and Americans cannot have two keys to the cupboard where lies the nuclear pushbutton.

True, the owners are getting tough. Nearly a dozen seamen are in jail after answering charges of disobeying lawful commands; there is a possibility that some may be charged with mutiny. Others are likely to be imprisoned for contempt of court. The hope, of course, is that these men will become martyrs suffering in a noble cause and there is no doubt that it does arouse a certain amount of sympathy—which is one of the reasons why the shipowners delayed so long in seeking drastic remedies.

If the dispute had continued—and that would have meant the end of the lawful authority of the leaders of the union—it is probable that some civil actions would have resulted and that strikers would have been sued for breach of contract.

The difficulty is that the process of law is rather prolonged and that the effects are felt long after the causes have disappeared. Substantial damages for breach of contract, the settling up of a seaman's home, the descent from affluence to penury, would doubtless be salutary if brought about within a day or two, but civil law does not work that way; hence the initial appeal to criminal law, which acts much more quickly.

The basic tragedy of the recent dispute is that a handful of agitators can effectively disrupt the shipping industry—not as effectively as they hoped, but enough to create chaos. In the old days the weapon of the agitator was that the men were suffering so much that they had little to lose. Today it is broadly that they have so much that a little holiday would not do them any harm.

Meanwhile the whole nation is the sufferer and the chain reaction is felt through the whole of industry. It is not unlikely that there will be some legislative action to strengthen the rights of shipowners through the courts to quicker redress for breach of contract.

The Packsack

By GREGORY CLARK

IN most respects people are divided into two categories. They are clever or dull, handsome or plain, rich or poor, pleasant or unpleasant. Of course there are all kinds of gradations; but in general a generality will do.

One of the interesting categories is that having to do with leave-taking. There are people who can, at exactly the right moment, decide to get up and go. And they get up, with the greatest sophistication and politeness, pick up their hats, shake hands and git.

Then there are the others. The time for them to go passed half to three-quarters of an hour ago. Indeed they may have said they must go half to three-quarters of an hour ago. But did they go?

They even get up, and then sit down again. They even get up and then sit down in a different chair. When they are finally on their feet and headed for the door, they back away. They forget where they left their hats. Still back, they put their backs against the door for one last ten-minute chin-wag. When they get the door half open, they close it again for just one last little thing they nearly forgot to mention.

And when you get them actually outside, they back down the front walk.

Many of the nicest people in the world don't know how to leave. (Copyright: Canada Wide)

Class Warfare

I note with interest that one of the CCF candidates in Victoria has attacked Premier Bennett for suggesting that the labor bosses are now in a position to take over the CCF party, and he suggests that this proves that Premier Bennett is "out of touch with the free democratic organizations of ordinary citizens."

To a casual observer, it would seem that Premier Bennett is in far closer touch with the people than certain CCF and union leaders have been in recent years. When the Labor Relations Act was amended several years ago, it was branded by union leaders as an assault upon organized labor, and all union members were invited to attend mass meetings in protest. Union members exhibited their good sense by staying away en masse, probably because they saw through the partisan politicking that prompted the protests.

Later, in 1959, the Trade Unions Act was amended, and again there were loud screams from the CCF and union leaders, plus a calculated attempt to promote bitterness between labor and management on a typical socialist class warfare basis.

Fortunately again, the vast majority of union members recognized that the famous Bill 43 did not threaten a single legitimate prerogative of organized labor. It made unions and employers equally responsible in law, and it curtailed certain illegal coercion and intimidation which had been a black mark against union activities. No fair-minded person is out of the union movement objected to these changes, in spite of a tremendous campaign by union leaders and CCF politicians to distort the facts.

Premier Bennett's government has been neither pro-labor nor anti-labor, and it has acted with political courage and honesty beyond that of many other governments of recent times, and has been supported accordingly.

On the other hand there is very little political honesty in an attempt to force a trade union member to support a political party which he may not wish to support. It will be interesting to see how the proposed new political party resulting from the merger of the unions and the CCF will deal with the problem of union dues being diverted to political activity—particularly the union dues of those who are not socialists.

This would of course be no problem if membership in unions were voluntary, and not, as in most cases today, a condition of employment. No one has yet explained how unions which engage in political activity under conditions of compulsory membership can remain free and democratic organizations of the people.

Appeal to Reason

Hon. Howard Green stated the other day in Vancouver that Canada's recent plea at the UN for a resumption of disarmament talks had been "under-played" in the West. But it is highly likely that it was under-played in the East, too, judging by Moscow's reaction to another Canadian initiative of late.

However, one trusts that Mr. Green's eloquent UN intervention wasn't under-played here as well. Before we look for world support for our representations local support seems imperative.

Mr. Green says his three days at the UN was the biggest thing of his 25 years of political life. While his career in high politics may not have been quite as spectacular as that of some of his contemporaries, nevertheless last week's initiative would rate important in any diplomat's bag.

In view of the despair and gloom consequent upon the Paris and Geneva breakdowns it is heartening to see some one with faith enough to issue one more appeal to reason.

Saanich Shingles Issue

Fence Fines Add To Roofer's Woes

A Saanich roofing contractor who spent $200 erecting a fence to hide a shingle stockpile from complaining neighbors paid fines totalling $40 yesterday for having failed to get a building permit for the fence.

But the fines were of only moderate significance to roofer Samuel E. Snobelen, 4691 Blenkinsop, who is afraid he may have to remove the fence and shingles as well as find a new location for business.

STILL PENDING

Snobelen said he and his wife, charged jointly for the building permit infraction, pleaded guilty only because they still have pending before Saanich council an application for a permit which would allow them to continue business at their home for a further six months.

Snobelen told the Colonist two Saanich building officials had told him no permit was needed for the fence — one before it was built and another one afterwards.

Only when a third municipal official branded the fence "a structure" were charges laid, he said.

Some months ago, a neighbor complained to Saanich council that Snobelen had shingles stacked in his yard contrary to a local bylaw.

Council ordered him to cease doing business at the address within 60 days, but a municipal official suggested in the interim he apply for a temporary licence permitting operations for six months at a time.

NOT OBVIOUS

One of the requirements for the licence was that the business aspects of the property must not be obvious to the public, so Snobelen proposed to hide the shingles and says he was told no permit would be necessary.

About the time charges were laid for not having obtained a building permit, he said, council tabled indefinitely his application for a licence. Council Monday gave him 30 days in which to comply with its earlier order.

He is interested in seeing the case through to some conclusion "because a great many of the contractors for whom I work are carrying on business in the same way."

Jobs, Lower Bills With Public Power

Saanich CCF candidate Pat Thomas said last night lower household bills for electricity is only one of the many advantages which public power will bring.

He told an election rally held in Cordova Bay community hall that public power can attract new industry by lower power costs—thus making more jobs.

"All power experts agree," said Mr. Thomas, "that public power in any given situation is always cheaper than private power in a similar situation.

The B.C. Electric and its cohorts have saddled us with high-cost power, and high rates, for far too long. It's time the BCE was placed under the people's own B.C. Hydro."

MONTREAL (UPI) — National Harbors Board police swooped down on the Canadian Pacific freighter Beavercove late Tuesday and arrested 38 British sailors who decided to stage a 24-hour sitdown strike in support of the crumbling British seamen's walkout.

The crewmen were arrested on charges of refusing to obey the command of the ship's master. The Beavercove had been scheduled to sail for U.K. ports Tuesday night, and now is to leave today.

Only Tories Protect All'

The CCF and labor "seem to be having a hard time coming together," Victoria Progressive Conservative candidate T. H. Cressy said yesterday, "but if they do, only a strong party of the right with no special privileges can protect the rights and independence of all the people."

B.C., he said, "certainly doesn't want to suffer the errors of the British Labor party, which Britain found it necessary to throw out and, of course, replace with a Conservative government."

CCF Wonders

How Do Socreds Get Their Funds?

Esquimalt CCF candidate Geoff Mitchell last night challenged the B.C. Social Credit League to disclose the source of its election funds.

Addressing an election rally in Shawnigan Lake Community Hall, he held aloft a sheaf of newspaper advertisements and questioned the source of the Social Credit campaign funds.

"In the past two days Social Credit has spent more money on advertising in the Victoria papers alone than my own campaign committee is going to spend on all types of electioneering for the whole campaign," said Mr. Mitchell.

Victoria Candidate

Big Money Lined Up Against CCF—Hindle

More money will be spent against the CCF in this election than ever before, Victoria CCF candidate Neil Hindle said last night.

"He said the 'big business buccaneer and his chrome-plated public relations men' have entered the campaign in an effort to poison the public mind against the CCF.

"They are afraid we will form the next government and therefore they will stop at nothing to keep us from our goal," said Mr. Hindle.

"Their motto is the devil take the hindmost. We in the CCF put the people first."

He said certain business interests in the province "conduct what is known as an above-board, clean campaign" by giving money to the "coalition of Liberals, Tories and Socreds.

Meanwhile, said Mr. Hindle, at a lower level their "sick and unscrupulous hirings are grinding out malicious inuendos and outright lies."

He said the CCF receives all its money from individuals.

Wholesome, Satisfying

'Pollyanna' Avoids Sickly Sentiment

By BERT BINNY

There is no substitute for actual attendance at "Pollyanna," the Walt Disney film production which opens at the Capitol today.

Nothing in the way of all the words that have been written or reported can convey the wholesome, satisfying enjoyment it offers. Primarily, it avoids throughout the dreadful pitfall of mawkish sentimentality into which, by reason of the theme and story, it could so easily fall. Neither theme nor story are new but in all their public appearances they have never been better treated.

Pollyanna is a girl of 14 who comes to live in a strange town and who, inevitably but unconsciously, brings it from a state of unhappy suppression to that of the glad town.

Hayley Mills, daughter of English actor John Mills and playwright Mary Hayley Bell, plays Pollyanna. True it is that, as John Crosby has pointed out, the stage today is hip-deep in child players. But few—if any—of them have the brilliance, the sensitivity or the utter reliability of Miss Mills. She combines assurance with relaxation; wisdom with ingenuousness; restraint with impeccable characterization.

Her talent will stand every test even without her youth to support it.

Hayley started out on "Pollyanna" as a minnow among Tritons. While she had certainly won the 1959 Silver Bear Award at the Berlin Film Festival for her performance in "Tiger Bay," in "Pollyanna" she was literally surrounded by film greats. But the minnow proved herself as great.

This picture is studded with lovely characterizations. In addition there are some superb interludes such as the sequence in the clothing shop, Miss Mills with a large but contented Jersey cow, Nancy Olson's hilarious dancing and others.

But for a performance of sheer power and impact among the adult members of the cast the laurels must rest on the brow of Kari Maleden as the "Reverend Paul Ford." It is in him that the changes wrought by Pollyanna are most clearly reflected and he mirrors them with shining clarity.

Accompanying "Pollyanna" is a delightful documentary, "The Mysterious Deep," with an uninhibited cast of amateurs such as whales, porpoises, rays, eels, crabs, anemones, jaw fish, sharks, octopuses and other intriguing creatures of the sea. Their goings-on, accompanied by intangible Disney commentary and music, are worthwhile all by themselves.

Add them to "Pollyanna" and there is a dish of artistic entertainment to set before a king and every one of his subjects.

Last night Chicago White Sox had him ready when Billy Pearce found an injured hip still bothering him and left the game without pitching to a batter. Wynn took over to four-hit the leading New York Yankees in a 5-1 decision which moves the White Sox within a half game of the American League lead.

And over in the National League, a younger veteran—33-year-old Lew Burdette—was also doing his best to pitch his club into the world series.

Burdette, who was kept less active than usual during the early part of the season in a long-range plan by manager Charlie Dressen to have his Burdette-Warren Spahn pitching one-two fresh for the stretch drive, came up with his third straight shutout and 15th win of the season.

OUTDOORS with Alec Merriman

Access passes to some of Vancouver Island's most lush hunting areas are now ready and will be distributed to Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association members of the Goldstream club grounds tonight and Thursday evening.

Club access chairman Bob Boul says the passes will allow hunters into the Highway Sawmills and Muir Creek operations of B.C. Forest Products at Sooke and to Shawanigan Lake, Cooper Canyon at Chemainus, Nanaimo River and Northwest Bay hunting areas.

Each access pass holder must volunteer for one day at gate duty during the season, which opens with grouse on Sept. 3. Passes are restricted to fish and game club members and membership chairman Jim Mowbray will be on hand at the club grounds to issue memberships. Hunters are advised to take along their guns as there will be practice shoots on the traps.

Dave Wigmore, chairman of the fishing chapter of the Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association, has some strong words to say about the rights of sportsmen.

"Right now the sportsman is the goat and until he stands up and yells for his rights, he will continue to be the goat," he told fellow anglers.

He said he was in agreement with the size limit on grilse, but believed further action should be taken to "stop the massacre by seiners."

"You should see the silver stream of dead young Jack springs and grilse that sometimes comes from these seiners after a set," Dave, who has been a commercial fisherman himself, said.

"Regulations now are all against the sport fisherman. We must stick up for ourselves," he urged. He said there should be a quota on the amount of tonnage of spring and coho salmon seiners are allowed to take. "Seining is a very wasteful way of fishing. We can't stop seining, but I think there should be a limit on the number of seiners allowed in any one area," he said.

Wigmore pointed to the poor salmon fishing this year and said he is chiefly worried about conservation of spring salmon. "Another 10 years may see the end of spring salmon fishing, unless drastic action is taken," he warned.

"There is a yearly quota on everything, but spring and coho... 'Why not on them?'" he asked.

Gerry Morris, well known local sport fisherman, backs him up. "One seiner will ruin more fish in one set than all Saanich Inlet anglers will catch in a year," he claimed.

He complained that debris is being allowed to collect in the rivers, making it difficult or impossible for salmon to get up to spawn. "Logging companies should be made to clean up the debris and they shouldn't be allowed to log close to the rivers," he said.

Speaking Briefly

Stampeders Sign Steve Owen

Steve Owen, a master at the Calgary, Stamps have managed only one point in their years with New York Giants, was signed yesterday to replace Otto Douglas as head coach of Calgary Stampeders.

Owen has joined the Western Interprovincial Football Union club for the balance of the season only, and no contract details were announced.

He attended his first practice session last night and will lead the club against Saskatchewan Roughriders next Monday in Calgary. Stamps have entered the U.S. amateur golf tournament, and only 19 are exempt from sectional qualifying rounds.

"I think the boys are down a little bit," said Owen. "We have to build them up. I think they are going places, barring injuries."

Owen was a tackle with the National Football League Giants in 1925 and coached the club from 1950-53. He coached Toronto Argonauts part of last season. Vancouver financier Peter Graham has left for a meeting in New York to try and obtain an American Football League franchise for Vancouver, but still doesn't know if he will be able to obtain use of Empire Stadium. Heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson escaped uninjured from an automobile accident yesterday in Stockholm. Winnipeg Blue Bombers have asked waivers on fullback import Rocco Perclaville, formerly of Montana State University.

Rain Stops Match; Africans Winless

LONDON (Reuters) — Rain ruined what promised to be an interesting finish, and any hopes of victory for South Africa, in the fifth cricket test Tuesday after South Africa had gone into the final day needed to score 216 in 180 minutes against England at the Oval.

The match ended in a draw with a struggling South Africa still 118 runs behind with six wickets lost.

The final score: England 155 and 479 for 9 declared; South Africa 419 and 97 for 4.

England won the first three tests and the fourth was drawn.

Over scores Tuesday:

1. Wednesday: Middlesex 229 for 9 declared and 182 for no wickets; Worcestershire 62 and 268; Middlesex won by 19 wickets. Middlesex 14 points.

CHICAGO (UPI)—It was a plain brown package tied with a piece of twine with the words, "In case of death burn," scribbled in longhand on one side.

The package came from the home of the late, legendary Ald. Charles H. (Charlie) Weber. Weber and his wife Emma were found dead from carbon monoxide poisoning in their home last Tuesday. Apparently fumes from a car in a garage had seeped in.

* * *

Since the double death the package had been dubbed the "mysterious box." It had been sealed and ordered not opened until yesterday.

Officials, police, newsmen and a band of curious city hall employees gathered for the opening.

From the gathered assemblage many guesses were made as to the contents. In 40 years of politicking, Weber had learned many secrets.

Some investigators theorized that it contained information on Weber's long business and political career. Internal revenue agents were on hand.

There was speculation it contained Weber's tax records.

They disclosed nothing about his business activities.

Inside were just things that a married couple collects after a lifetime of love and marriage—love letters from Weber to his wife before they were married, snapshots, faded newspaper clippings showing Charlie with old friends, menus and play programs that Weber and his wife had attended and a white napkin with the penciled words: "I love you. (Signed) Chas."

* * *

There was also a will made out by Mrs. Weber under her maiden name of Emma Sprague. It was written in longhand on the back of five deposit slips and left everything she owned to her husband.

B.C. Hospital Plan Extension

Chronic Cases Covered Soon?

For Furniture*Aged Make Plea

A group of Saanich old-age pensioners have purchased a house at 46 Simms Avenue and are seeking donations of furniture to convert it to recreational use.

Frank Heaton, welfare administrator for Saanich, yesterday made an appeal on behalf of the group for some kitchen chairs, two or three armchairs, cups and saucers, and a cabinet or chest for storage purposes.

He said the group plans to operate the Parkdale Pastime Centre as a non-profit organization financed out of membership dues. It will serve as a meeting place and recreational centre for older folk who now must make a trip to Victoria to find these facilities.

Youth Told To Abstain From Liquor

A Victoria youth who pleaded guilty to a charge of breaking, entering and theft was given suspended sentence here yesterday on condition he abstain from liquor and consult a psychiatrist if necessary.

Harold Preston, also known as Harold Marcus, 207 Maddock, was ordered by Magistrate J. A. Byers to post a $250 bond for one year and to obey whatever advice he is given by probation officers.

Coldwell:

CCF Would Pay All Medical Bills

COURTENAY — M. J. Coldwell told a meeting here last night that a CCF government would immediately inaugurate a complete medical coverage plan for every man, woman and child in B.C. "regardless of length of purse."

He said he had been authorized to make this pledge by B.C. CCF leader Robert Strachan and the party's provincial executive.

The honorary leader of the Canadian CCF Party made the statement at an impromptu meeting which drew 120 people in support of Comox CCF candidate Fred Wood.

He said the comprehensive medical plan would be implemented at the first session of the legislature after a CCF government is elected.

Garden Club Show Slated for Sept. 10

Fall show of the Gordon Head Garden Club will be held Sept. 10 from 2 to 9 p.m. in the community hall, Tyndall Avenue. Entries should be made through Mrs. A. Whitaker, 2224 Edgewood.

Personal Repair Service Likely to Prove Popular

Bound to prove popular is a new project undertaken by the Silver Threads Service, a Red Feather agency in Victoria.

A number of elderly members of the centre have volunteered to operate a "personal repair service," to sew on buttons, turn shirt collars and other similar jobs for elderly men living alone. Skirt and dress alterations will also be undertaken.

Extension of hospital insurance to cover "chronic" cases capable of recovery or at least improvement may be announced Thursday.

At the Oak Bay Social Credit nomination meeting July 28, Health Minister Eric Martin said a chronic care program would begin this month, and Thursday, with the end of the month approaching, he will speak to the Rotary Club of Victoria on chronic care.

The program, under the federal-provincial health insurance agreement, is expected to be greeted with equal enthusiasm by general hospitals in need of more space for "acute" patients and by institutions such as Gorge Road Hospital with rehabilitative facilities for treatment of chronic cases.

Under the present program, patients can remain under hospital insurance, paying $1 a day, only as long as they are allowed to remain in the "acute" hospitals. This has led, hospital officials say, to long-term occupation of acute hospital beds by patients who do not need full-scale acute hospital treatment.

READY AND WAITING

Gorge Road Hospital has been "ready and waiting for two years" for insurance to be extended to the "chronic" cases, Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson, a hospital board member, said yesterday.

About one-quarter of the patients, she said, are taking physiotherapy and may be eligible for coverage, "and we have plans to make the base-ment a rehabilitation centre."

LAST SESSION

At the last session of the legislature, Mr. Martin gave an indication of the extent of coverage.

"The proposed plan will be referred to as the rehabilitation, chronic treatment and convalescent plan and the public hospitals providing the service will be designated in those terms," he said.

The state of illness primarily to be considered as qualifying for benefits is that phase between the subsiding or arresting of a disease and as complete a restoration of health as possible. This state, although it may be protracted, is temporary, being terminated by the onset of either full recovery or partial recovery or at least improvement over the status on admission.

IN-PATIENT CARE

"However, also being considered are patients not likely to improve, but whose conditions are such that they require in-patient hospital care below the level of an acute general hospital, but who could not safely be placed in a nursing home or like institution. It is questionable whether such patients should be housed in the same nursing unit as the rehabilitation and convalescent patients described above."

This means that a patient of 75 who has a reasonable possibility of improvement to the extent that he can return home for even a few months will be considered a rehabilitation patient just as much as a youth of 17 who will be fit enough to take employment when his treatments have been completed. In addition, a patient with no apparent potential for recovery, but who can safely be cared for only in an accredited hospital, will be entitled to coverage.

MODIFICATION

But the differences between it and the third were explained when the third was submitted recently to public works committee. One modification was that the second draft would allow all existing signs to remain in place for three years; the third, for 10 years.

Representatives will attend the meeting at 8 tonight from the city's advisory planning commission, the Capitol Region Planning Board, the Victoria branch of the Community Planning Association of Canada, and the retail merchants' group of the Chamber of Commerce.

The proof of the pudding is in the amount of taxes — $78 per capita — the highest in Canada.

Driver Walks From Wreck

Missing a curve at the east end of Dewdney Flats on the Sooke Road yesterday, a half-ton truck flew off the road shoulder, went through a wire fence 48 feet beyond and came to rest jammed among trees another 20 feet past the fence.

Driver Clarence Smith of New Westminster walked out of his wrecked truck with a deep cut on the back of one hand and a bruise over his left eye.

Mr. Smith is an employee of the B.C. Telephone Company now working at Sooke. RCMP, who took him to St. Mary's Priory at Langford for treatment, said his truck bounced from one tree to a second, and scored the bark of a third tree seven feet above the roof-level of the car.

Chamber to Dive Into Civic Swim

Victoria Chamber of Commerce will launch an intensified program in the field of civic affairs according to its new president-elect, M. Aubrey Kent.

His election to the next presidency of the chamber only a few hours ago, Mr. Kent last night told the Colonist, "I think the chamber has a busy time ahead of it if it is to give the leadership in civic affairs which it should give."

Asked what firm plans he had for his term of office, which will commence sometime in September, he said, "I can see a strong committee assisting council to find a solution to our parking problem."

Mr. Kent, president of Kent's Ltd., a 96-year-old firm dealing in electrical appliances, said he is frankly doubtful of Victoria's ability to attract large, major industries.

"What we must do is strive for secondary industries," he stated.

"Other cities will grow faster, perhaps, but none will ever compare with Victoria as a place to live."

NANAIMO (CP) — Fishing boat captain Arvo Nurmi of Vancouver was fined $125 Tuesday on a charge of being impaired while operating his boat. He was forbidden to operate a boat in Canada for 30 days.

Public Meeting

Battle Expected On Sign Issue

City hall is expected to be the scene of conflict tonight when a draft bylaw to control signs in Victoria is put before a public meeting.

THIRD DRAFT

The draft is the third prepared by the city planning and inspection division.

The first was rejected by city council public works committee after sign company spokesmen vigorously objected some of its provisions. The second was submitted to a special committee of Ald. Rev. J. L. W. McLean and sign company representatives, and was never completely made public.

MODIFICATION

But the differences between it and the third were explained when the third was submitted recently to public works committee. One modification was that the second draft would allow all existing signs to remain in place for three years; the third, for 10 years.

Representatives will attend the meeting at 8 tonight from the city's advisory planning commission, the Capitol Region Planning Board, the Victoria branch of the Community Planning Association of Canada, and the retail merchants' group of the Chamber of Commerce.

The retail merchants' group is on record as favoring the second draft.

Driver Clarence Smith of New Westminster walked out of his wrecked truck with a deep cut on the back of one hand and a bruise over his left eye.

Mr. Smith is an employee of the B.C. Telephone Company now working at Sooke. RCMP, who took him to St. Mary's Priory at Langford for treatment, said his truck bounced from one tree to a second, and scored the bark of a third tree seven feet above the roof-level of the car.

RCAF Plans Graduation

Graduation ceremonies for the RCAF's Reserve Tradesmen Training Plan will be held Friday at 7:30 p.m. at headquarters on Yates Street. Air Commodore Gordon G. Truscott, deputy commander Maritime Pacific, will inspect the graduates and present awards.

Election Notebook

He's Smarter By George!

By PETER BRUTON

TOOTING OWN HORN: A three-page article entitled "Our Attorney-General" is included in a voluminous candidates' manual issued to all Grit standard-bearers by Liberal chieftain Ray Perrault.

As might be expected the Liberals haven't too high a regard for the capabilities and performance of Attorney-General Robert Bonner.

The article purports to show how fellow lawyer and Victoria MLA in the last legislature, George Gregory, bettered Mr. Bonner in the field of political debate.

First paragraph begins:

"It might be observed in passing that Mr. Gregory is smarter than the average attorney-general because..."

Author of the article—George F. Gregory.

SEEN IN PASSING: Oak Bay Conservative James A. George walking along a busy city street.

A passing car slows, the window is rolled down and a voice yells out: "Go Grit Mr. George."

Mr. George turns brick red but looks neither to his right or left and keeps marching.

SPEEDY THE LIMITE: "Flying Phil" Gagliardi is still getting a lot of mileage out of those speeding convictions.

"Where else did you ever see a cabinet minister pinched by a policeman, not once but three times?" queried the highway minister while telling an election audience that the law was the same for everybody in B.C.

"I put the RCMP in business," he added. "They're making more money than ever before pinching people going over 60 miles an hour on our fine new roads."

VOTES NETTED: A sort of drive-in ballot box will be provided for fishermen along the B.C. coast wishing to cast absentee votes in the Sept. 12 provincial election.

Special provisions had to be made to allow halibut and salmon fishermen to vote.

Absentee ballots for fishermen may be cast in Comox, Alberni, Esquimalt, Mackenzie, Prince Rupert, Nanaimo and Victoria ridings from Sept. 8 to 10 between the hours of 1 and 9 p.m.

AMAZING UPSET: Liberal leader Ray Perrault says there is an identical spirit in B.C. today as there was in 1952 when Social Credit was first elected.

"I am looking forward to one of the most amazing upsets in political history," he added.

And Mr. Perrault also found room to criticize the CCF and Progressive Conservative parties.

"The Tories, he said, wouldn't win a single seat and the CCF program would cost taxpayers $100,000,000."

YE OLDE CAMPAIGN: Don't expect those arch-conservative Conservatives in Oak Bay to put on a lively campaign. They are convinced there is no place for levity.

Yesterday William Gage, campaign manager for candidate James A. A. George, angrily charged that some Oak Bay Liberals "have gone as far as interfering with the election."

Seems a quantity of pre-paid postage postcards which should have been delivered to Tory headquarters were sent to the Liberal offices by mistake and now some are showing up stamped "Go Grit."

"I regret to see this type of campaigning by some irresponsible members of the Liberal party," he said. "They have started defacing campaign headquarters with paint, and are carrying on like children."

WHEN IN ROME: Saanich CCF candidate Pat Thomas yesterday accused the Socreds of waging a campaign of "fear, smear and innuendo" and said government candidates were experts "in the art of the half-truth and distortion."

Premier Bennett was apparently right when he said this would be a dirty campaign," snorted Mr. Thomas during a talk to the women's council of Saanich CCF.

Mr. Thomas himself seemed guilty of not a little distortion.

Premier Bennett has consistently stated he does not think it will be a dirty campaign.

TISSALIE-ISMS: John Tisdalle, Saanich Social Credit candidate, kept his audience rocking last night with these comments:

"The amalgamation of labor and the CCF has become a trojan horse designed to confuse the public and no one is quite sure which end of the horse is the CCF."

"Our government might be plagued by political criticism but let's hope the people of B.C. are never struck with Strachan."

"For the past eight years the Social Credit government has been oiling B.C.'s industrial machine. Now we've got Grit in the gears."

"Conservative leader Deane Finlayson said he was going to stand on his own two feet and handle the campaign by himself. It's the first time he's been right side up."

SUDDEN DECREASE: For a time yesterday there were four all-candidate forums scheduled to be held in Saanich during the present election campaign.

Then there were only two. Social Crediter John Tisdalle said he would be unable to take part in the meetings in Saanichton and Brentwood.

Social Credit candidates generally shy clear of all-candidate meetings on the grounds that their appearance only helps to bring out a large crowd for the other candidates.

SORRY, WRONG NUMBER: There are two Hindles in the Victoria telephone book—and CCF candidate Neil Hindle can't be contacted at either of them.

Apparently voters have been deluging the other two Hindles since the campaign began.

Neil Hindle's number, which isn't in the book, is EV 2-8887.

REAL GONE: There's still a terrific demand for "Go Grit" buttons, Victoria Liberal officials reported last night.

The 5,000 made for the local Liberals have been depleted to some 1,000 and there's a growing demand from Liberal organizations throughout the province for supplies of the button.

ODDS AND ENDS: Victoria and Saanich Progressive Conservatives have arranged a joint campaign meeting Sept. 1 at 8 p.m. in Lake Hill Women's Institute Hall. Speakers will include the three Victoria candidates, C. A. P. Murison, Clive Campbell, and T. H. Cressy and Saanich candidate Victor Virgin . . . CCF member of Parliament, Harold Winch will speak in this area twice this week, at Douglas CCF Hall at 8 p.m. . . . Thursday, and at Sooke, Friday . . . Liberal leader Ray Perrault will be chief speaker at a rally in the Dominion Theatre at 8 p.m. on Aug. 31 . . . Saanich Liberal candidate Frank Greive will kick off his campaign with a meeting in Lake Hill Women's Institute Hall at 8 p.m. Thursday. His headquarters at 324 Douglas will also be opened Thursday . . . CCF leader Robert Strachan has switched dates of two scheduled meetings in the B.C. campaign. He will now speak at Prince Rupert Aug. 31 and Kitimat on Sept. 1 . . . Abolition of the provincial sales tax and increased taxes on natural resources was urged by Communist provincial leader Nigel Morgan . . . Conservative leader Deane Finlayson said B.C. is governed by an "if" government. Premier Bennett is always promising to spend B.C. funds on vast projects "if" they will be matched by federal funds, he said.

REBATE TOO SMALL: An angry Saanich ratepayer phoned Saanich CCF candidate Pat Thomas yesterday to report that his taxes went up 75 per cent more than the increase in the government's

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: If I didn't have a small child who needs me I would take my life! Please tell me how to face the future.

I've been married eight years to a man I worshipped. I thought he was a saint. Bud and I were very close until our daughter was born, then he seemed to drift away slowly.

One night I insisted he tell me what was wrong. He confessed he had been involved with another woman for over a year. He swore the affair had been over for months and he was relieved.

My whole world fell apart. I left him the next day. He came after me, begged me to forgive him and we went to church together and promised to build a new life together.

It's been three months and I can't forgive him for cheating, lying and ruining my life. I won't let him come near me. I keep thinking the other woman should be made to suffer as I have suffered.

I've even thought of going

TIPS FOR PARENTS

By HELEN HEWSON

A survey made of several families with children whose school days were just beginning, revealed several problems common to most of them. These problems were not confined to parents whose first child was stepping off to school but cropped up as the third, fourth, and in one instance the sixth members of the family entered school.

• After a week or two of school many children became tired and irritable—they may even revert to bed-wetting and thumb-sucking.

• Don't jump to the conclusion that the teacher is a cross-patch and too hard on your little one. Adjusting to the school routine and being one of a group of 25 to 40 children makes heavy demands on the young child.

Avoid over-excitement and late hours at home. Extra patience and good humor may be needed to reduce family friction and explosions.

The child who is free from strain and anxiety at home will soon feel more comfortable at school.

• All parents of the families surveyed had noticed their children's growing independence and ability to care for themselves after a few weeks at school. Some accepted it as signs of growing up, others said they were becoming "too uppity and hard to manage."

Growing up calls for a review and some revision of home rules and regulations that will encourage the child's initiative and sense of responsibility.

Perhaps it is time for more pocket money, for help in choosing how to use his out-of-school hours, time to begin using the family bulletin-board and fewer verbal orders and reminders.

Mrs. Livesey, a teacher at Oak Bay Senior High School and who has been in charge of English for New Canadians division at Victoria Night School is taking a teacher's assistantship at UBC.

Diana will enter her third year in Arts at UBC.

WHAT'S COOKING

By LOUISE MOORE

It's preserving time again—but don't get into a pickle.

Prepare in leisure moments some of the following which will add a bit of nectar to tired old menus:

BRANDED PLUMS

Choose 4 lbs. of firm, but not too ripe, plums. Leave on an inch of the stems if they have them. Pierce each plum two or three times with a knitting needle to prevent them bursting during cooking—pierce right to the pit.

Place plums in a pot of cold water and heat until water is boiling. Remove from heat and let stand about 5 minutes. Skim out the plums and place in a sieve or colander to drain.

61 BUILDING SUPPLIES

CEDAR

WHAT IS FOREST SIDING?

Made of dry 1½" stock in 10 and 12-inch widths, "FOREST" siding is a distinctive and pleasing appearance, having a natural character obtained from specially selected cedar logs sawn to show the natural grain and character of knots, burrs, etc.

APPEARANCE?

For homes and buildings where a distinctive, natural appearance is desired, "FOREST" siding is the answer. Sound intergrown knots ranging in size from 1½" to 2½" and 12-inch to 16-inch in 12-inch widths add to the rustic appearance of this grade.

WHAT ARE ITS QUALITIES?

"FOREST" siding, with its substantial thickness and greater density, has a natural strength and durability. It is a natural product, not a man-made material, and is a true representation of the natural strength and solidity of the building.

"FOREST" siding ensures a tight weather seal at the lap which together with its natural grain and knotting principle, makes excellent material from the INSULATION standpoint.

"FOREST" siding represents an economy to home-builders. The types of siding and the design ensures easy fitting and speedy application at less labor cost.

HOW IS IT APPLIED?

As easily and quickly as common exterior paint. Each piece of "FOREST" siding fits snugly on the one below and requires only one nail per cut.

HOW CAN IT BE FINISHED?

If a natural finish is desired, use equal quantities of raw umber oil and any well-known stain. This will not only protect the wood surface, but also brings out the natural grain. If a colored finish is desired, "FOREST" siding can be stained with any oil stain, but where it will not allow to stop formation of a vapor barrier.

Divide West
Cuba's AimSister States
Urge
Moderation

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (UPI)—Colombia Tuesday accused Cuba of trying to divide the western hemisphere and of seeking to turn Latin America against the U.S.

Latin American foreign ministers worked behind the scenes here, meanwhile, to persuade Cuba to try to moderate her foreign policy.

HESTER TODAY

The Organization of American States' meeting was called to consider the threat of Communist infiltration in the western hemisphere. U.S. State Secretary Herter is to speak today.

Cuba's foreign minister, Justo Turbay, calling on Cuba to submit to the "discipline" of the inter-American system, said today's conflict is between America and the Soviet Union—"between democracy and Communism."

ROCKET THREATS

He said current threats to hemispheric solidarity stemmed principally from Nikita Khrushchev's threats to use rockets against the U.S. if it attacks Cuba and Cuba's acceptance of the offer.

Turbay said both offer and acceptance constituted an "unequivocal violation of the juridical and political fundamentals of the American system" and proposed settling Cuban-U.S. differences by a five-national committee.

MORE MODERATE

Peru's Raul Porras and Mexico's Manuel Tello were more moderate. Porras reaffirmed the principle of hemispheric fraternity and Tello called on Cuba to achieve its goals without outside help.

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—A 15-year-old St. Louis Negro boy has been granted permission by baseball commissioner Ford Frick to sign a pro contract "as a hardship case" and major league scouts are lining up to make their offers.

He is Mike Jones, a six-foot 170-pound seventh-grader and son of a laborer with 10 children. His right-handed pitching and slugging has attracted a lot of attention from scouts in the area. The boy's sponsor and team seven homers in three games."

HEARD FIRST

Studies indicate that alterations in the sound pattern may be noticed before physical changes are observable by X-ray, he added.

The sounds can be picked up by a sensitive microphone attached to the knee—and then recorded on magnetic tape for later analysis.

ABOUT SAME

Normal knee joints, he said, produced sounds which are relatively uniform in intensity, frequency and wave pattern.

In rheumatoid knee joints, the most frequently heard sound was a low thud, while in degenerative arthritis (osteo-arthritis) the characteristic sound was a series of high-frequency bursts at irregular intervals.

Courtenay Meeting

Coldwell Slaps 'Sacred Fable'

NANAIMO — Former CCF leader, M. J. Coldwell, arrived on Vancouver Island yesterday for a meeting at Courtenay.

In an interview on his arrival Mr. Coldwell said a statement by the Social Credit party that investment would be curbed if a CCF government was elected is "Social Credit propaganda."

Mr. Coldwell said investment in the province of Saskatchewan is nothing like it is in the "two neighboring provinces nor in B.C. The investment issue which the Social Credit are bringing up is a 'Social Credit fable,'" he said. "They live on fables."

It was the same fable when they promised to people of Alberta a dividend . . . "then they proceeded to give away their oil resources to private enterprise."

Mr. Coldwell said "the auto insurance plan in the CCF platform would result in great savings to the people of B.C. This would 'sep the money' otherwise going to the large finance houses in the east—in B.C."

"It has generally been admitted that the CCF has been

Wholesome, Satisfying

'Pollyanna' AVOIDS Sickly Sentiment

By BERT BINNY

There is no substitute for actual attendance at "Pollyanna," the Walt Disney film production which opens at the Capitol today.

Nothing in the way of all the words that have been written or reported can convey the wholesome, satisfying enjoyment it offers. Primarily, it avoids throughout the dreadful pitfall of mawkish sentimentality into which, by reason of the theme and story, it could so easily fall. Neither theme nor story are new but in all their public appearances they have never been better treated.

Pollyanna is a girl of 14 who comes to live in a strange town and who, inevitably but unconsciously, brings it from a state of unhappy suppression to that of "the glad town."

Hayley Mills, daughter of English actor John Mills and playwright Mary Hayley Bell, plays Pollyanna. True it is that, as John Crosby has pointed out, the stage today is hip-deep in child players. But few—if any—of them have the brilliance, the sensitivity or the utter reliability of Miss Mills. She combines assurance with relaxation; wisdom with ingenuousness; restraint with impeccable characterization.

Her talent will stand every test even without her youth to support it.

Hayley started out on "Pollyanna" as a minnow among Tritons. While she had certainly won the 1959 Silver Bear Award at the Berlin Film Festival for her performance in "Tiger Bay" in "Pollyanna" she was literally surrounded by film greats. But the minnow proved herself as great.

This picture is studded with lovely characterizations. In addition there are some superb interludes such as the sequence in the clothing shop. Miss Mills with a large but contented Jersey cow, Nancy Olson's hilarious dancing and others.

But for a performance of

Union Bay Father Drops Dead

COURTENAY—A 28-year-old Union Bay man dropped dead of a heart attack at his work Tuesday in Courtenay.

Robert Treloar leaves a wife and small children.

The workman said "I feel funny" as he climbed on top of a truckload of sand to shovel into a cement mixer. Moments later he collapsed and died immediately.

Mr. Coldwell was met by Colin Cameron, CCF candidate for Nanaimo and the Islands.

B.C. Chiefs

Fire Convention Centre's First

CAMPBELL RIVER — The 29th fire chiefs of B.C. convention—first convention of any kind ever held here—started yesterday and runs until Friday.

Already 123 fire chiefs and deputies from all parts of the province have registered here. Many are accompanied by their wives who are being entertained while the convention is in progress by wives of local volunteer firemen.

TWO SPONSORS

A jaunt to April Point resort on Quadra Island aboard the ferry boat Quadra Queen is being jointly sponsored by the B.C. Power Commission and Elk Falls division of Crown Zellerbach.

At yesterday's opening session delegates were welcomed by village commission chairman R. D. Jamieson and Carl O. Thulin, chairman of Campbell River fire protection district.

This evening a salmon barbecue has been arranged, with Mr. and Mrs. S. Henderson as cooks, and there will be a salmon fishing derby for chiefs and their wives with a trophy for the heaviest fish.

Thursday afternoon firemen will demonstrate methods of putting out a propane gas fire. It will be staged at Tyee Plaza.

Victorian Warned

DUNCAN — Shirley Ann Burgess, 22, of Victoria, was warned that traffic speed signs "are put up for the safety of the public."

Through her mother, she became guilty of speeding 16

m.p.h. over the 20 m.p.h. speed limit at Cowichan Bay. Fine was $10.

Magistrate A. C. Sutton warned that motorists must observe the slow traffic limits in such areas as the bay where the road is narrow, and usually choked with parked cars belonging to fishermen.

Also in court, Alfred Tait of Nanaimo was fined $50 for operating a truck carrying asphalt that was 7,180 pounds over the nine-ton limit for single rear-axle vehicles.

Aged Make Plea

A group of Saanich old-age pensioners have purchased a house at 46 Simms Avenue and are seeking donations of furniture to convert it to a creational use.

Frank Heaton, welfare administrator for Saanich, yesterday made an appeal on behalf of the group for some kitchen chairs, two or three armchairs, cups and saucers, and a cabinet or chest for storage purposes.

He said the group plans to operate the Parkdale Pastime Centre as a non-profit organization financed out of membership dues. It will serve as a meeting place and recreational centre for older folk who now must make a trip to Victoria to find these facilities.

A Victoria youth who pleaded guilty to a charge of breaking, entering and theft was given suspended sentence here yesterday on condition he abstain from liquor and consult a psychiatrist if necessary. ## CCF Would Pay All Medical Bills

COURTENAY — M. J. Coldwell told a meeting here last night that a CCF government would immediately inaugurate a complete medical coverage plan for every man, woman and child in B.C. "regardless of length of purse."

He said he had been authorized to make this pledge by B.C. CCF leader Robert Strachan and the party's provincial executive.

The honorary leader of the Canadian CCF Party made the statement at an impromptu meeting which drew 120 people in support of Comox CCF candidate Fred Wood.

FIRST SESSION

He said the comprehensive medical plan would be implemented at the first session of the legislature after a CCF government is elected.

He told the meeting that the people of B.C. are spending $89,000,000 a year for various forms of medical aid.

"Under a government plan I am convinced the costs would be far less than they are paying today."

Giveaway Charge Ridiculous Kiernan Tells Duncan Crowd

DUNCAN—Resources Minister Kenneth Kiernan last night charged allegations that the government is making a present of the Peace River potential were "wild and ridiculous" and said that there is no such a thing as a giveaway in the statutes.

Statutes already passed in the province forbid the giving away of natural resources, and specifically stated that they can only be leased for periods up to 20 years.

"Besides, no one is going to pack them off anywhere. They are going to ask for a licence to make it plain now, that

Chamber to Dive Into Civic Swim

Victoria Chamber of Commerce will launch an intensified program in the field of civic affairs according to its new president-elect, M. Aubrey Kent.

His election to the next presidency of the chamber only a few hours old, Mr. Kent last night told the Colonist, "I think the chamber has a busy time ahead of it if it is to give the leadership in civic affairs which it should give."

Asked what firm plans he had for his term of office, which will commence sometime in September, he said, "I can see a strong committee assisting council to find a solution to our parking problem."

"This, to my mind, is perhaps the most important matter facing not only Victoria, but every growing city."

Mr. Kent, president of Mr. Kent's Ltd., a 38-year-old city firm dealing in electrical appliances, said he is frankly doubtful of Victoria's ability to attract large, major industries.

"What we must do is strive for secondary industries," he stated.

"Other cities will grow faster, perhaps, but none will ever compare with Victoria as a place to live."

MORE CANADIANS ARRESTED IN NEW CONGO 'SPY SCARE'

Cuba Latin Target

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (UPI)—Colombia Tuesday accused Cuba of trying to divide the western hemisphere and of seeking to turn Latin America against the U.S.

Latin American foreign minister worked behind the scenes here, meanwhile, to persuade Cuba to try to moderate her foreign policy.

HERTER TODAY

The Organization of American States' meeting was called to consider the threat of Communist infiltration in the western hemisphere. U.S. State Secretary Herter is to speak today.

Colombia's foreign minister, Julio Turbay, calling on Cuba to submit to the "discipline" of the inter-American system, said today's conflict is between America and the Soviet Union—"between democracy and Communism."

ROCKET THREATS

He said current threats to hemispheric solidarity stemmed principally from Nikita Khrushchev's threats to use rockets against the U.S. if it attacks Cuba and Cuba's acceptance of the offer.

Turbay said both offer and acceptance constituted an "unequivocal violation of the judicial and political fundamentals of the American system," and proposed settling Cuban-U.S. differences by a five-nation committee.

Peru's Raul Porras and Mexico's Manuel Tello were more moderate. Porras reaffirmed the principle of hemispheric fraternity and Tello called on Cuba "to achieve its goals without outside help."

Rule Waived for Boy, 15

Majors Chase Hardship Star

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A 15-year-old St. Louis Negro boy has been granted permission by baseball commissioner Ford Frick to sign a pro contract "as a hardship case" and major league scouts are lining up to make their offers.

He is Mike Jones, a six-foot 170-pound seventh-grader and son of a laborer with 10 children. His right-handed pitching and slugging has attracted a lot of attention from scouts in the area. The boy's sponsor and team manager is Irvin Lorts of St. Louis. Lorts said he was told in a letter from Frick the rule against signing boys before they graduate from high school would be waived in Jones' case Aug. 31.

"He has pitched more than 30 no-hits games," Lorts said. "At Brentwood Park he hit a ball that cleared a creek behind a fence which is 447 feet from the plate. At Maplewood he hit two that cleared a road behind the fence. Three weekends ago he hit seven homers in three games."

Scot Nationalists Hiss 'The Queen'

Baby Wins First Round

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—A baby girl here survived a heart operation 48 hours after birth, doctors said Tuesday.

A membrane in Rhoda Lunt's heart was blocking oxygen from her lungs. This happens about once in every 70,000 births and is usually fatal.

(Reuters)—Scottish nationalists Tuesday night remained seated and hissed during the playing of God Save the Queen following a new Edinburgh festival play about Scottish patriot William Wallace. But they later joined in the singing of the Scottish anthem, "Scots Wha Hae."

The demonstration was made to mark the anniversary of the execution of Wallace, in London on Aug. 23, 1307.

'Hic, Hic, Hurrah' as Queen Honors Barmaid

LONDON (CP)—For the first time in history the Queen has awarded a British Empire medal in honor of service to the tipping public.

Agnes Mawhinney, a spry 65, received her medal Tuesday beside the bar of the pub in which she has pulled pints for 14 years. She is now manager of the Crown, a pub at Wetheral in the north of England. Agnes could have gone to Buckingham Palace to receive her award, but she chose to stay in her pub. The Queen couldn't be there, but she sent Sir Fergus Graham, Lord Lieutenant of Cumberland, all decked out in his dress blues uniform. He read the citation: "Miss Mawhinney has given a high standard of public service to the community." Then he pinned the medal on the delighted lady.

"Hic, Hic, Hurrah," shouted the delighted townsfolk who gathered around the bar for the celebration. They had come early to get a head start. Their cheers rang on into the night. Agnes was also handed a personal message from the Queen.

It was clearly her big day. And it came just in time. Agnes is retiring at the end of the month.

Lumumba Protected

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (CP)—Several Canadians serving with the United Nations force were arrested and held briefly Tuesday at Stanleyville in the Congo interior, reports reaching here said.

They were not identified and there were no immediate details about the incident.

FIVE DETAINED

Congo military police swooped down on a huge apartment building in downtown Leopoldville meanwhile and detained five men—two for possessing rifles and three for having radio transmitting equipment.

The latter three were freed with some embarrassment an hour later after it was learned they were invited to the Congo by the government to lend technical assistance.

PLOT RUMORED

Armed cars and two platoons of troops mounted guard around Premier Patrice Lumumba's official residence following rumors of a plot against his life.

In Lubumbashi, the Belgian pilot of a Sabena aircraft on charter to the United Nations was detained after flying in from Leopoldville.

UN officials expected a continuation of these minor incidents during the present "spy scare," when anyone in uniform with a white face is immediately suspect.

Alexander, who arrived by air from New York, repeated his conviction that the UN force in the Congo is in an "impossible position" because it has not received clear, concise orders.

Bunche, the world organization's representative in the Congo, said Alexander's criticism was not valid because the UN army was a "peace-force" not a fighting force.

NEW LONDON, Conn. (UPI)—The committee for non-violent action plans to board a Polaris missile submarine Thursday in what it terms its first act of "civil disobedience" to protest the arms race.

Three men and a woman will sail in skiff to either the George Washington or Patrick Henry, whichever is in port at the time, to set up a "vigil" on her deck.

New London is home port for the two nuclear submarines.

Katanga Fighting

UN Troops Join Rebel Tribesmen

ELISABETHVILLE, Katanga (UPI)—Mutinous UN troops from West Africa's recently dissolved Malian Federation were reported today to have joined tribesmen fighting the government of this "independent" Congo province.

A Katanga government announcement said at least two persons—an African territorial agent and a policeman—had been killed in riots touched off by the mutiny of a Malian detachment at Albertville, 420 miles northeast of here.

The announcement said the mutineers were "fraternizing" with Baluba tribesmen hostile to the secessionist Katanga regime.

(In Brussels, the Belgian defense ministry announced that Belgian troops broke up a Baluba attack yesterday on the Albertville railway station.

The Belgian announcement, however, made no mention of a Malian mutiny.)

UN authorities sent an observer to Albertville to investigate the Katanga claim.

Mayor Not Worried

Traffic Falls Off At Nanaimo Ferry

★ ★ *

MAYOR MAFFEO
... 'I don't care'

Volume of traffic using Nanaimo ferries is reported off 18 to 20 per cent from normal, and while most of the blame is being laid at the doorstep of the new B.C. ferry service from Swartz Bay, Mayor Pete Maffeo says "I am not at all concerned."

He said that if the provincial ferry service is making inroads on Nanaimo's trade the condition is only temporary because more island ferries mean more tourists.

"I don't care how many ferries are put on—they all help to bring more people," said the Nanaimo mayor.

He said he personally inspected ferry docks in Nanaimo at the weekend and found "that the lineups were so long they were pitiful."

A great many Island visitors are still plagued by the fear they may not be able to get back to the mainland when they want to, he added.

Giving Cat Drink Costs Sailor $40

FORT WILLIAM, Ont. (UPI)—A sailor was fined $40 yesterday for giving a cat a drink of milk from his glass in a local restaurant.

Raymond Jackson, a 27-year-old Halifax-based seaman, was charged with causing a disturbance.

The proprietor took exception, and Jackson was charged with causing a disturbance.

Pope John XXIII today receives about 7,000 Olympic athletes from both sides of the Iron Curtain in an unprecedented open-air audience in St. Peter's Square on the eve of the 1960 games.

No other pontiff in the 2,000-year history of the Roman Catholic Church has ever addressed Olympic athletes en masse.

Russia's Olympic team sent word to Vatican officials that it would be present at the audience. Communist Yugoslavia, Romania, Bulgaria and Czechoslovakia intimated that they would boycott the papal appearance.

Vatican officials said at least 70 of the 85 nations competing in the Rome Olympic games have announced they were attending the audience.

Pope John, sitting on a gilded throne on top of the flight of steps leading up to St. Peter's basilica, was to address the athletes in Latin. Vatican interpreters will then summarize the speech in 15 languages including Russian, Polish, Hungarian, English and French.

Italian Defense Minister Giulio Andreotti, in his capacity as president of the organizing committee for the Rome Olympic, will deliver a Latin-language address of greetings to the Pontiff. Pope John will read his 10-minute Latin speech to the athletes.
